HOLIDAYS MISS ONLY 94 DAYS

Festive Dates of World Cover Practically the Entire Calendar.

SOME EXCLUSIVE ONES

Brazil Heads List With 86 Local, National and Church.

Only 94 days are left in the year which are full, free and untrammelled working days the world around, says a New York dispatch. There are 114 days still remaining in the annual calendar which are not yet holidays anywhere. But 20 of these are in the United States, becoming more and more difficult for a country to pick an exclusive holiday. With all the new countries which have been carved out of the political map the rush for new holidays may start any time.

There are reasons, of course, for some of the days being celebrated as holidays in many countries, like New Year and Christmas. But who could figure that August 2, for instance, would be a holiday in 17 different countries or possessions and two of our United States. It is a bank holiday in the United Kingdom, in the British possessions, in the United States, in the United States of Brazil, with topping the list. Brazil has 11 national or State holidays.

It has 17 more days which are church holidays. While they are not legal holidays, they are generally observed as such. Then there are 58 more days (legal holidays) observed locally in the different Brazilian States. The national, church and local celebrations Brazil can boast of 86 annual holidays. The Empire of India boasts 21 general holidays in the year in addition to more than 400 of special holidays for Hindus, Parsees, Mohammedans, Jews, Jains, Christians and representatives of other religious beliefs.

Egypt has a heavy list, too, on account of her many peoples. Egypt recognizes 24 holidays, ranging from Nau Roz, the Mohammedan New Year, to the Jewish Passover and the Gentile Christmas.

The Chinese New Year was celebrated this year from February 13 to 23. It is the most important of the five great popular festivals in China. The others are the Spring, Autumn and Mid-autumn festivals. The holidays and festival days make a total of 15.

Germany lists 20 holidays at present, none in honor of royalty or birthdays. As the "Bank and Public Holiday" volume pertinently says: "With very few exceptions the birthdays of royal personages have ceased to be holidays, none of the new republics thus commemorating any of their former rulers."

Persia has only 10 holidays, but names include: Eslut-Ak-Kad (Night of Power); Ramezan (two days); Idul-Azha, Nau Roz (New Year); Idul-Azha, Nau Roz (New Year); Idul-Azha, Nau Roz (New Year); and Birth of the Prophet. Macao, which includes Monte Carlo, makes only eight days a year holidays.

To Liberia goes the low holiday score. The republic lists only five holidays: New Year, Good Friday, Independence, Newport Day and Christmas.

The days which are holidays in the greatest number of countries are New Year, Good Friday, Easter and Christmas.

ASKS PAY FOR DAMAGED ART

Hendrik C. Andersen Files Claim with Reparations Commission.

Hendrik Christian Andersen, the American sculptor at Rome, has just filed with the State Department here and the Reparations Commission at Paris a claim of $300,000 against Germany for the destruction of a group of statues during the war.

Just preceding the outbreak of hostilities in 1914, Andersen at the request of the German government sent to the International Art Exhibition at Leipzig a group of bronzes making up a large sculptural work to be known as "The Fountain of Life."

The statues represented fifteen years of work and were designed by Andersen as one of the principal monuments for the international city that is to become the administrative center of the league of nations.

The group was awarded the first prize at the Leipzig exhibition. The outbreak of hostilities and the closing of the frontier in 1914 rendered it impossible for Andersen to have the group of bronzes returned to his studio at Rome and nothing was learned of their fate or disposition until he was notified a few weeks ago that they had been seized by the German war minister and destroyed. The huge amount of bronze and copper in their composition was presumably used for war munitions.

Valuable as this was, it was still nothing from Andersen's point of view as compared with the fifteen years of work and artistic effort which they represented.

According to the information which has just reached Andersen, the Germans endeavored to seize the group of bronzes almost with the outbreak of hostilities. As America is still a neutral country it was for the time being deterred. As soon, however, as America entered the war the group was seized and rushed to the melting pot.

The Head Nurse says:

1. The skin is the largest organ of the body. It is the first line of defense against disease. It is the first line of defense against disease. It is the first line of defense against disease.

HELP THE BOY.

The adolescent boy with his changing voice and bad complexion! Do help him to clear up his skin. It is possible to improve conditions, and if you suggest it to him, he will be glad to do so. The body mechanism has a matter of health you may get his co-operation.

A warm bath daily, using a good castile soap, at bedtime, will loosen up those dead skin cells and make way for the load of impurities which the glands underneath are struggling to bring to the surface. The body mechanism has a matter of health you may get his co-operation.

Mix a tablespoonful of epsom salts with a pint of water and place it on his dresser. Mop the face with this mixture after the bath; it will take the offending crusts off. At his meals give him stewed fruit and green vegetables. He is bound to eat between meals, so have plenty of fruit about that he may find a substitute for candy. Give him lemonade instead of soda water. Any skin trouble will respond to this treatment. The difficulty in the case of youth is his love for the flesh pots and the consequent overloading of the body cells with unnecessary fats and sugars. Like his older brothers, however, he is reachable through his vanity.

START HOTBED NOW FOR YOUR VEGETABLES

This is the time to start a hotbed for early vegetables. This will mean a gain of four to six weeks over outdoor planting.

In other words, radishes may be ready for the table at the time the first seeds can be planted out-doors; and such plants as tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers and melons will have a season six weeks longer than that afforded by the garden.

Net Blouses Again in Demand

Imported blouses are showing net as a material highly favored, particularly when it is combined with lace as trimming. Another feature of the new blouses from Paris is the long sleeves which appear in almost every style. These either come in tightly about the wrist, or hang in bell-fashion over the hand.

INDIAN EXILES SUE FOR RIGHTS

Half-Breed Lawyer Claims 400 Disregarded by Carter Bill.

FAST SUM INVOLVED

Breuninger Studied Law to Protect Red Man From Whites.

Property valued at from $50,000 to $100,000 is involved in the injunction suit filed in the District Supreme Court by August A. Breuninger, a half-breed Menominee Indian, against Thomas L. Sloan and Thomas G. Bishop, president and secretary respectively of the Society of North American Indians.

Breuninger, who admits being exiled from the Menominee Indian Reservation in 1911, charges Sloan and Bishop with lobbying in behalf of the Carter bill, which confers citizenship on all Indians.

Because of the alleged activities, Breuninger asserts the rights of more than 400 "exiles" on this property are disregarded and if the bill becomes a law these "exiles" will be "out-of-luck."

The property, Breuninger declares in his petition, covers 230,000 acres. Breuninger's name, along with 400 others, was removed from the rolls because his ancestors, and those of his fellow exiles, accepted "Half-Breed Money" in 1849.

The Carter bill, introduced by Representative Charles D. Carter, himself an Indian, is now bill calculated to benefit the Indians, Breuninger asserts. Representative Carter does not represent the Indians, he declares, because no Indian can be represented in Congress because of the law of 1849.

Breuninger, who is both a law student and a musician, lives with his wife, a half-breed Chippewa, at 258 Quincy place northeast. He has been in Washington about two years and took up the study of law to protect his rights and those of the 400 half-breeds who are now living outside the reservation.

THE BIBLE

Translated out of the original tongues and from the edition known as "Our Mother's Bible."

58 And the garment, either warp or woof, or whatsoever thing of skin it be, which thou shalt wash, if the plague be, departed from them, then it shall be washed the second time, and shall be clean.

59 This is the law of the plague of leprosy in a garment of woollen or linen, either in the warp, or woof, or any thing of skin, to pronounce it clean, or to pronounce it unclean.

CHAPTER 14.

1 The rites and ceremonies of cleansing of the leper. 23 The signs of leprosy in a house. 43 The cleansing of that house. And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying:

2 This shall be the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing: He shall be brought unto the priest: and the priest shall wash him with clean water, and shall clean him, and shall behold, if the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper:

3 Then shall the priest command that the leper for his cleansing be cleansed two birds alive and clean, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop:

4 And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel over running water.

5 As for the living bird, he shall kill it, and the cedar wood, the scarlet, and the hyssop, and shall dip them and the living bird in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water:

6 And he shall sprinkle upon him that is to be cleansed from the leper seven times, and shall pronounce him clean, and shall let the living bird loose into the open field.

7 And he shall wash his clothes, and shall wash his head, and shall wash his face, and shall wash his feet, and shall wash his body with clean water, and he shall be clean.

9 And the priest shall maketh him clean shall present the man that is to be made clean, and those things, before the Lord, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

Con's own nerves were in a precarious state. Just here some psychic current caught him away, and the moonlight sent him backward into the ages, a vivid, irrational experience, and it seemed that he had been outside her tent, somewhere, terribly long ago, perhaps when the Gughal had been a deep singing river, and the monster Gobi a crystal ocean. Here beside the water they had camped, he and his captive queen, their hearts the same. Now Con's turban cast a shadow upon the tent, and he knew that it was himself, then as now. That ancient madness still possessed his veins in the thrall of her presence. Camels sniffing in the blue shadows, a faded watch fire, the silence of wooded hills around, and the immensity of heaven. The illusion held a moment—or a century?—longer—and a hand was up on his shoulder. Levington was chilled to the quick. This was Fu Ah, desiring speech in private.

"She must sleep," said the Chinese reverently.

"Yes. Don't give her any more than she needs. Help her to break off. Not so often."

There was an injured quality in the voice.

"Yes. The dreams have got to go."

"No."

"She die," said Fu Ah, with seeming complacency.

"Not at all. We are to help her shake off this dreaming. Less and less, until she is free."

The idea of freedom did not dwell between the narrow temples of the old servant.

"We camp here?"

"No," answered Levington.

"No, no, no, no, no."

"I don't expect her to ride. In the morning we will make a ham-
